Dear Birthmother,

Thank you for taking the time to consider us as potential adoptive Dads for your baby. We are so grateful to have the chance to become fathers again, as having our son was such a wonderful gift that has changed our lives forever. The amazing opportunity that you may be giving us is something we will think about every day for the rest of our lives.

Our family is a place where we are open and honest, as well as loving and supportive. We cherish time with our family and friends, and try to create an environment where there is constantly a support system for our child/children. We believe in family dinners, fun vacations, and constant expressions of love. Thank you again for considering us as part of your adoption journey. The bravery you are showing in changing lives is magical.

We spent our first few years together establishing a home, careers, continuing our education, travelling when possible, and spending time with family and friends.

Esteve grew up in Bolivia, South America. He spent time living with both his mother and father, and is fortunate enough to have had 6 siblings in his extended family. He finished high school and then two years of law school before pursuing new opportunities in the US when he was 24 years old. When he moved to the US he went to school to learn English, lived in Washington DC before moving to Boston, and then ultimately stayed in Boston when he and Steven met. Esteve worked for years at Bank of America but when Jacob was born he became a full-time at-home parent, which is the job he is most proud of!

Steven is a Boston local, who grew up with his two parents and sister in a house just north of the city. He was surrounded by aunts and uncles and cousins growing up, and participated in a variety of activities. Steven went to public high school, and then on to college and then eventually graduate school to get a Master's degree. He works in Human Resources in Boston for a software company

Jacob

After 5 years together we embarked on the adoption journey and we were so incredibly blessed to have our son, Jacob, come into our lives. We were there when Jacob was born, cut the umbilical cord, and have been loving him and adoring him ever since. He was premature and we spent the first month in the NICU with him, but luckily he has grown into a strong, healthy, curious, wonderful little boy.
