

Jen

To an extremely courageous and generous woman,
I am so very honored that you are considering me as an adoptive parent for your child...

These years have been interesting and happy, but I know now that I am ready for something else in my life. A new purpose that is centered on loving another more than myself-to raise, to teach and to guide a child. Time moves very quickly (Too quickly) and I know that I must act now if I want to be a mother

I am not alone in this, as my family and network of friends are completely behind me in this decision. They understand that this is something I desire with all my heart and they are committed to be an active part of my child's life.

If entrusted with the privilege to allow to help him or her grow in every possible way I will be eternally grateful to be given this opportunity.

I am excited to share all my love, time, and energy towards providing endless opportunities allowing your child to become the most well-rounded and very best version of him or herself...

I live in a wonderful yet diverse neighborhood in Massachusetts, which is why I cannot imagine the rest of my life without a child.....

And so, I am writing here today of my promise to treasure the gift-to nurture, to teach, and to love with all my heart & soul. I also promise to respect and to never forget the strength and courage of the mother who would entrust the life of her child to me...

From the deepest part of my heart I thank you

With Love,
Jen
